28. The Institute—

(a) shall prepare and submit its annual estimates of revenue and expenditure to the Board for approval by end October annually in such form as the Board shall, from time to time, prescribe; and

(b) may incur expenditure in accordance with estimates approved by the Board, and any approved expenditure under any head of the estimates may not be exceeded without the approval of the Board.

PART VII—MEETINGS OF THE INSTITUTE

Annual general meeting

29.—(1) Pursuant to section 43(1) of the Act, the annual general meeting of the Institute shall be held by the end of the tenth month after close of the financial year.

(2) The Board shall give every member entitled to attend an annual general meeting of the Institute a notice of twenty one days for the meeting.

(3) The agenda for the annual general meeting and other relevant documents shall be circulated to all members entitled to attend the meeting twenty one days before the meeting.

(4) The annual general meeting of the Institute shall be presided over by the President or in his absence his appointed representative under regulation 30.

(5) The annual general meeting shall be attended by only full and paid-up members who are eligible to vote.

(6) Voting at an annual general meeting shall be by secret ballot.

(7) Decisions at an annual general meeting shall be by simple majority.

(8) At the annual general meeting of the Institute, each member present shall have one vote on a question on the floor and, in the event of equality of votes, the Chairperson shall have, in addition to a deliberative vote, a casting vote.

(9) There shall be constituted a Nominations and Elections Committee of the Board which shall manage the voting process at the annual general meeting.

(10) The Chairperson of the meeting shall have powers to adjourn the meeting.

(11) The Secretariat shall circulate minutes of the annual general meeting to all members not later than twenty-one days after the date of the meeting.

30.—(1) The President of the Institute, elected pursuant to section 43 (2) of the Act, shall be the mouthpiece of the general membership of the Institute on matters relating to the profession. The President of the Institute

(2) The President shall be invited to meetings of the Board whenever matters pertaining to the general membership are to be discussed.

(3) The President shall operate through the Secretariat of the Institute on such terms and conditions as the Board shall determine.

(4) In addition to the President, there shall be elected, at the annual general meeting, three regional representatives of the Institute.

(5) The President shall propose the committees to be constituted by the Institute pursuant to section 43(2) of the Act.

(6) Amongst the committees to be proposed under subregulation (4) shall be the Welfare Committee.

31. In case of an extra ordinary meeting, convened pursuant to section 43 (3) of the Act, only items on the agenda shall be considered. Business at an extra ordinary general meeting

PART VIII—MISCELLANEOUS

32. Existing members of the Institute shall provide updated documents including certified copies of certificates and passport size photographs in such a manner as the Board shall determine. Existing members

33.—(1) Procurement proceedings shall be conducted in compliance with the laws, policies, and principles of the organization aimed at achieving and promoting professional integrity: Procurement professionalism

Provided that in cases where a member is unduly influenced to act contrary to subregulation (1), he shall inform the organization's management in writing about such impending violation.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of these Regulations, a member may recuse himself if management insists that the procurement proceedings still be carried out contrary to subregulation (1).

34.—(1) For the purpose of these Regulations, a "whistleblower" is a person who exposes any kind of information or activity that is deemed illegal, unethical, or not correct within an organization that is either private or public. Whistleblowing

(2) A whistleblower may use one or combination of the following modes—

- (a) a phone call;
- (b) a letter;
- (c) an e-mail;
- (d) a text message; or

PREAMBLE

INTRODUCTION

Ethics is defined as the moral principles governing or influencing conduct. The Concise Oxford Dictionary of Current English defines ethics as the branch of knowledge concerned with moral principles.

Most procurement principles such as fairness, integrity and transparency are based on ethics. Standards of ethical conduct typically contain commitments to—

- (a) behave honourably in all aspects of work and professional activity and avoid conflicts of interest;
- (b) show personal conduct that maintains trust and confidence in the integrity of the procurement process;
- (c) refrain from taking undue advantage of others or the system; and
- (d) uphold the organisation's standards and policies and all relevant legislation.

QUALITIES OF A PROCUREMENT PROFESSIONAL

An important attribute of a procurement professional is his passion to operate as a faithful steward. The Concise Oxford dictionary of Current English defines a steward as “a person employed to manage another's property.” As a steward, the procurement professional is entrusted with effective spending of organisation's resources on relevant or meaningful procurement. The professional must spend procurement money only in the way that it is meant to be spent and must not deviate from procedures to suit their own convenience.

A professional must adhere to the ethical standards and responsibilities that apply to procurement activities in order to protect the integrity, fairness and transparency of the procurement process. Procurement activities must be carried out in a manner above reproach.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF STAKEHOLDERS IN PROCUREMENT PROCESS

Bidders, contractors and procuring entities are expected to approach each procurement process in an honest, fair and comprehensive manner, accurately reflecting their capacity to satisfy the requirements stipulated in the procurement process.

To help ensure that the entire procurement process conforms to the highest standards of ethical conduct, these stakeholders should avoid any action that would jeopardise the procurement professionals' ability to respect their obligations under this Code of Conduct.

STRUCTURE OF THE CODE OF CONDUCT

This Code of Conduct contains two parts. Part A establishes the fundamental principles of professional ethics for procurement professionals. Part B addresses how breach of this Code of Conduct will be handled.

PART A: FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES OF PROCUREMENT

BASIC PRINCIPLES

A procurement professional shall use professional judgement in applying this conceptual framework. The purpose of this Code of Conduct is to promote mutual trust and respect, and create an environment where business can be conducted with integrity and in a fair and transparent manner.

Ethical concepts and principles

Ethical concepts and principles that relate to the procurement process include—

- (a) integrity;
- (b) fairness;

- (c) confidentiality;
- (d) transparency;
- (e) professional competence and due care;
- (f) avoidance of conflict of interest;
- (g) gifts and hospitality; and
- (h) accountability.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

Each of these fundamental principles is discussed below:

INTEGRITY

Integrity is strict adherence to a moral code, reflected in transparency and honesty. It also means being straightforward and honest in all professional and business relationships.

People in procurement positions are expected to maintain high standards of integrity and moral values. Integrity covers such qualities as honesty, truthfulness, fidelity and freedom from corrupting influences. Procurement personnel must subordinate their private interests and avoid placing themselves in positions where those interests would conflict with the interests of the organisations they serve.

Integrity emphasises that people in procurement must believe that trust of the public is so important that it cannot be compromised. It will be demonstrated by—

- (a) upholding the values including impartiality, fairness, honesty, and truthfulness, in daily activities and behaviours;
- (b) acting without consideration of personal gain;
- (c) resisting undue political pressure in decision making;
- (d) not abusing power or authority;
- (e) taking prompt action in cases of unprofessional or unethical behaviour; and
- (f) avoiding all forms of corruption that may occur at any stage in the acquisition process (budget, procurement, contract management, etc.).

IMPARTIALITY AND FAIRNESS

Fairness and impartiality implies giving equal opportunities to all suppliers— such as giving as much advantage, consideration, or latitude to one party as it is given to another.

Impartiality and fairness require the procurement professional to operate with objectivity and lack of bias. This implies treating organisation's business partners with professional, business-like courtesy, as well as with strict adherence to the policies and procedures for conducting the transaction.

In this context, the procurement professional should—

- (a) set aside all personal and organisational biases; and
- (b) apply the same standards of evaluation to all the suppliers. For example, if one supplier requests additional information, all suppliers should receive that information at the same time; the reason for disqualifying one supplier must be applied to all suppliers uniformly.

CONFIDENTIALITY

Confidentiality means the entrustment of proprietary information from one party to another for that party's exclusive use so as not to impart the obtained knowledge to others.

Due to the delicate nature of information handled in the procurement process, confidentiality deserves extra consideration. A breach of this principle could damage the image of an organisations. The disclosure of information may jeopardise the efficiency and credibility of an organisation.

Confidentially means that, while the way the overall procurement process is conducted needs to be clear and transparent, truly proprietary data needs to remain confidential. This means that all procurement professionals will need to take an oath of secrecy before taking office.

TRANSPARENCY

Transparency refers to lack of hidden agendas and conditions accompanied by the availability of full information required for collaboration, cooperation, and collective decision making. It also refers to level of disclosure at which agreements, dealings, practices, and transactions are open to all for verification.

Transparency is of paramount importance in procurement because of the need for accountability of the huge sums of funds that go into it. Therefore, all transactions should be subject to scrutiny. People in procurement must always conduct themselves in such a way that any scrutiny would not reveal shady transactions, which may damage the image of their organisations.

People in procurement must comply with the standards of their own organisations, and must be open to examination by external parties such as the press, external auditors, or other outside observers.

However, when information is truly confidential, such as proprietary data belonging to a supplier, confidentiality should override the need to be transparent.

PERSONAL COMPETENCE AND DUE CARE

Professional competence and due care means maintaining professional knowledge and skills at the level required to ensure that a client or employer receives competent professional services based on current developments in practice.

Procurement professionals must keep themselves abreast with developing practices in their profession. They must also carry out duties carefully and thoroughly and avoid careless practices or techniques. This requires that all procurement activities should be pursued in a manner that goes beyond the minimum effort.

Due care means that the procurement professional should—

- (a) check the references of potential suppliers and monitor existing suppliers adequately;
- (b) develop impartial evaluation criteria;

- (c) carefully analyse all offers received; and
- (d) avoid cutting corners for the sake of convenience.

Personal competence and due care also demand that procurement professionals should be loyal both to their profession and organisation. They should, therefore—

- (a) stand by decisions that are in the interest of the organisation even if such decisions are unpopular;
- (b) understand the rules and regulations pertaining to his or her profession and organisation;
- (c) respect the need for the formality of rules and regulations, and interpret and apply such rules and regulations in accordance with their intent; and
- (d) be able to perform procurement responsibilities effectively and efficiently, and still abide by the pertinent rules.

If a rule or regulation must be reconsidered or changed, the procurement officer should pursue the appropriate process to submit the recommended revision through established channels and include complete documentation to explain and justify the proposed change. During this process, the existing regulations, rules and procedures must be followed.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Conflict of interest is a situation in which a party's responsibility to a second-party limits its ability to discharge its responsibility to a third-party. Such a situation might undermine the impartiality of a person.

Conflict of interest is a very common risk in procurement. Conflict of interest is defined as a direct clash between the interest of an organisation and the private or personal interest of an individual in procurement.

The need to avoid conflict of interest demands that a procurement officer should not use his or her office or knowledge gained from their official functions for private gain, financial or otherwise, or for the private gain of any third party.

In the context of procurement, the procurement practitioner should—

- (a) declare with immediate effect any potential conflict of interest;
- (b) not to use information obtained for professional reasons for personal profit;
- (c) disclose and dispose the financial interest involved;
- (d) not to participate in any conflicting procurement process; and
- (e) excuse or withdraw from any procurement process where the person may have a conflicting interest.

GIFTS AND HOSPITALITY

A Procurement professional should not be placed in a position where his or her actions may constitute or could be reasonably perceived as reflecting favourable treatment to an individual or entity by accepting gifts and hospitality or other similar considerations. He or she may not accept any gift from any outside source that is soliciting business with his or her organisation regardless of the value. A Procurement professional shall decline offers of gifts, including drinks, meals, tickets, hospitality, transportation, or any other form of benefits.

While the practice of offering gifts to customers is very common in business, it needs to be appreciated that it is based on the universal sense that if a person receives something, they will feel obliged to give something in exchange.

The procurement professional should—

- (a) be able to identify covert gifts;
- (b) not accept any gift from suppliers or other sources, but report them to designated authorities;
- (c) be aware of the reasons for not accepting such benefits; and
- (d) be aware of the impact on the organisation of accepting such benefits.

ACCOUNTABILITY

Accountability means being responsible for one's actions and decisions, and having the obligation to report and answer to a designated oversight entity and the public on the consequences of those actions and decisions.

Procurement professionals must maintain for each procurement process a level of documentation commensurate with the scale, scope and risk of the procurement. Documentation should provide accurate and concise information on—

- (a) the requirement for the procurement;
- (b) the process that was followed;
- (c) how value for money was considered and achieved;
- (d) relevant approvals; and
- (e) relevant decisions and the basis of those decisions.

AVOIDANCE OF THE APPEARANCE OF IMPROPRIETY

Procurement professionals must adhere to very conservative standards. They must be constantly aware of how their actions appear to outside observers. Procurement professionals should always behave in such a way that observers could not misconstrue their actions as improper.

What people think of the Procurement professional's behaviour can be the basis of scandals based on misunderstandings and erroneous information. Such scandals can negatively affect the effectiveness of an organisation to achieve its mission.

Since different societies have different standards of what is proper and what is not, it is important to recognise cultural differences in appearances and to anticipate in the most conservative terms what might be perceived as improper conduct.

PART B: BREACH OF THE CODE

INTRODUCTION

The Malawi Institute of Procurement and Supply Act, 2016 (the "Act" hereinafter) makes provision for the enforcement of this code of conduct. Any breach of this Code shall be punishable by the Institute.

Breaches of this Code shall be reported to the Chief Executive Officer of the Institute who shall present the complaint to the Disciplinary Committee of the Institute appointed under Sections 27 and 28 of the MIPS Act.

To this end, the Institute may, through the Disciplinary Committee, convene and conduct an enquiry into any breach of the code and to subpoena any person to appear in person at or produce documents relating to an enquiry.

While this enquiry is being conducted, the Institute may suspend the concerned member from its membership to pave way for smooth investigations.

PURPOSE OF SANCTIONS

Sanctioning individuals and organisations for unethical conduct has four major goals—

- (a) to penalise the person in violation: When an individual violates the Code of Conduct, there must be consequences associated with that misconduct. Depending on how serious the misconduct is, the Institute has a range of sanctions that it can impose, from less to more punitive depending on the violation and the totality of the facts (see section 4.3 below);
- (b) to serve as a mechanism to educate and rehabilitate: It is important to provide feedback to individuals who violate the Code of Conduct so that they understand and appreciate exactly how their past conduct was inappropriate, so that it will be less likely to occur again in the future. These measures serve a rehabilitation function;
- (c) to protect the public: The welfare of the consumer and the reputation and integrity of the profession must be protected; and
- (e) to inform other members of the Institute that the Institute enforces its ethical standards: The Institute publishes the majority of its sanctions to serve as a means of informing the members of their ongoing ethical responsibilities and to alert them that there are penalties for engaging in unprofessional conduct.

TYPES OF SANCTIONS

The Institute may, as appropriate, sanction those who breach the code of conduct through the following—

- (a) reprimand: the sanction of reprimand is confidential and imposed in cases where the unethical conduct is of a minor nature. A reprimand is disclosed only to the person found in violation and to the complainant who originally filed the complaint. Any further unauthorised disclosure of the sanction of reprimand is, itself, a violation of this Code of Conduct;
- (b) suspension: the Institute may impose the sanction of suspension of membership. The sanction is usually intended to be employed for short periods of time (e.g., six(6) months);
- (c) revocation: for serious cases of misconduct, the Institute may revoke or cancel an individual's membership and certification for a period of years or up to life. After the period of revocation has expired, in order for the individual to seek reinstatement of membership and/or certification, a petition must be made to the Institute. In petitioning for reinstatement, the individual has the burden of demonstrating that conditions that led to the revocation have been rectified and that, upon reinstatement, the individual will abide by the Code of Conduct; and

- (d) fine: as provided for in sections 46 and 47 of the MIPS Act, the sanction of fine may be imposed on entities which fail to meet the requirements of this Code of Conduct.

CORRECTIVE ACTION

A party facing sanctions is required to provide a statement to the effect that action has been undertaken to correct the action that caused the sanction.

Any corrective action required must be completed within thirty (30) calendar days of the receipt of the decision(s) and the reasons for the decision(s) of the relevant Committee meeting by the concerned party (subject to any appeal that may be lodged).

Where corrective action has not been actioned within thirty (30) calendar days from receipt of the decision(s) and the reasons for the decision(s) of relevant Committee meeting, the Committee may impose a fine for that breach of the order to take the corrective action.

MONETARY FINES

The Institute may impose a monetary fine in accordance with its schedule of fines.

The monetary fine must be paid within thirty (30) calendar days from receipt of the decision(s) and the reasons for the decision(s) subject to any appeal that may be lodged under section 4.6 of the Code.

Where a monetary fine has not been paid within the required thirty (30) calendar days from receipt of the decision(s) and the reasons for the decision(s), a further fine may be imposed for that breach of not paying the fine within the required period.

APPEALS

An appeal is a rehearing of the original complaint. The Appeals Committee has the power to affirm, set aside or vary the findings and/or any sanction which has been imposed. The Appeals Committee shall not uphold an appeal unless it is persuaded that the sanction imposed involved an error on the basis of which they should be set aside or varied.

A party that has been found in breach of the Code and had a sanction imposed on them may lodge an appeal against the findings and/or sanction that has been imposed. Notice of an appeal must be made in writing by the appellant within five (5) working days of receiving the decision(s) and the reasons for the decision(s).

SECOND SCHEDULE

(reg. 3(c))

STANDARDS FOR ACCREDITATION OF PROCUREMENT AND SUPPLY TRAINING INSTITUTIONS AND PROVIDERS

1.0 INTRODUCTION

This document sets out the standards and process for accrediting procurement and supply institutions in Malawi. All such institutions are expected to use the standards framework as a guide when developing their training structures and programmes. The broader aim of accreditation is to ensure that institutions involved in the training of procurement and supply management workforce achieve effectiveness with a sense of accountability to the general public. The process of accreditation is a measure of quality that depends on trust, integrity and ethical judgement of its stakeholders on the observance of the set standards.

1.1 THE PURPOSE OF ACCREDITING TRAINING INSTITUTIONS

The purpose of the accreditation process is to collect valid and authentic evidence that matches the specified standards to ensure quality service and professionalism is upheld. It provides checks and balances to performance in a democratic environment that encourages wide participation in procurement and supply management training. Secondly, the accreditation of institutions is intended to build confidence and integrity amongst professional bodies, students, employers for better governance and quality output to match with the needs of the work place. Furthermore, it is a monitoring tool and performance audit tool designed to check compliance with the set policies and conformity to standards by institutions involved in training procurement and supply human resource.

The standards expected of providers of procurement and supply training are set out in Appendix 1.

1.2 SCOPE OF THE STANDARDS

The process of and procedure for recognising training institutions for purposes of quality assurance and improvement consist of physical and academic parts of assessment. The accrediting process requires that institutions do self-evaluation of their mission and purpose; the academic programmes and the facilities; staff quality and adequacy; availability of financial resources to manage their own goals, operations and achievements. This is followed by a visit of evaluators to assess the physical facilities and the curriculum. The evaluation team then produces a report inclusive of suggestions and recommendations to the accreditation body.

1.3 BASIS FOR THE STANDARDS

The accreditation standards are based on both Chartered Institute of Procurement and Supply (CIPS) and the National Council for Higher Education (the “Council”). The academic component of the standards is based on CIPS, as they are internationally accepted, while the infrastructure component is based on guidelines provided by the Council, which is mandated to regulate higher education in Malawi.

2.0 BACKGROUND

As part of the procurement reforms, a capacity building programme of procurement entities was initiated by the Office of Director of Public Procurement (ODPP) at institutions of higher learning, namely, the Polytechnic of the University of Malawi (UNIMA) and Malawi Institute of Management (MIM). Since then, there has been a proliferation of private institutions providing training in procurement and supply chain management. However, this training has not been within the framework of a national accreditation and standards framework for procurement and supply.

In recognition of the largely unregulated nature of procurement and supply chain management training, Government through the ODDP established the Malawi Institute of Procurement and Supply (the Institute) under an Act of Parliament to take responsibility for regulating training institutions and providers. The Malawi Institute of Procurement and Supply Act of 2016 (the “ Act”) (Part II section 4(b) and (c) provides for setting standards in collaboration with educational and professional institutions.

3.0 OBJECTIVES

The objectives of these standards are to ensure that all training institutions and providers meet the minimum academic and physical standards as stipulated by the Council and the Institute. This will also ensure that the students learn in sound environments with acceptable surroundings, and that the output from these institutions is of comparably creditable quality. These standards shall apply to all institutional programmes and services regardless of their location. The standards will further still serve as a yardstick for ensuring that competence, knowledge and achievements are recognised and rewarded through qualifications.

Specifically, the standards for training institutions are established to achieve the following—

- (a) to assure students and the public quality services;
- (b) to uphold professional standards at training institutions;
- (c) to provide checks and balances to quality performance in a democratic environment that encourages wide participation in procurement and supply management training;
- (d) to build confidence and integrity amongst the professional bodies, students, employers for better governance to yield quality output to match the needs of the work place;
- (e) to guarantee that quality standards such as admission are met to facilitate international recognition;

- (f) to ensure that quality assurance arrangements are more independent, absolute and benchmarked in recruitment and promotion procedures;
- (g) to reduce the problem of makeshift training institutions;
- (h) to ensure that regulations on student mobility, credit transfer and accumulation in cross-border delivery, strengthen capacity and quality assurance of the accredited training institutions and their programmes;
- (i) to ensure that qualified resources are maintained to run higher education or professional courses;
- (j) to ensure that evaluation and validation of credentials reduce discrepancies between the local and internationally recognised qualifications;
- (k) to ensure that institutions offering procurement and supply chain management training carry out their operations with integrity and transparency;
- (l) to close institutions that fail to meet the set minimum standards; and
- (m) to ensure that training in procurement and supply management meets required standards and guidelines, thereby resulting in uniformity of the training offered.

4.0 GUIDING PRINCIPLES

The principles guiding accreditation of procurement and supply training are as follows—

- (a) standards set out herein shall apply to all procurement and supply management training institutions;
- (b) institutions of procurement and supply management training will only render such services when they are duly registered;
- (c) only accredited procurement and supply programmes shall be offered;
- (d) procurement and supply management training institutions will be regularly monitored to ensure conformity to standards set herein;
- (e) training institutions in procurement and supply management will be required to maintain up to date records on activities related to their training; and
- (f) procurement and supply management training institutions will not be allowed to vary their training programmes without permission of the Institute.

5.0 PROCESS OF IMPLEMENTING THE STANDARDS

The Institute is empowered to promote, uphold and improve training and professional standards of training Procurement and Supply Chain Management. In doing so, the Institute shall require that each institution requiring to provide procurement training in Malawi should apply for accreditation to the Institute using the prescribed form.

Upon receipt of the form, the Institute shall dispatch a team of inspectors that shall include a member from the Council to assess whether or not the institution meets the standards that have been set by the Council (in respect of physical infrastructure and other facilities) and the Institute (in respect of training programmes).

The process will require an individual or a training institution to do the following—

Step One: Application for Accreditation: - Submit an application in writing to the National Council of Higher Education (with a copy to the Institute) or apply using the prescribed form provided by the Council/the Institute for accreditation purposes and the grant of charter. The application form/letter should include the draft charter; governance structure of the institution and systems; a list and qualifications of staff; financial status; development statutes of the core courses offered; infrastructure following guidelines established by the Council/the Institute; and a receipt for the payment of standing fees.

Foreign institutions seeking accreditation will also apply to the commission for accreditation in accordance with the provisions of the Act. One of the conditions for a foreign institution to be accredited is proof of accreditation in its country of origin.

Step Two: Assessment of Applicant: - the Institute will upon receipt of the application and after verifying that it is in order, send a team of inspectors (who should include members from the Council) to inspect the premises, assess the resources of the applicant (using Form 1 in the Appendix II). Assessment of basic requirements and minimum standards for training institutions shall be done in two parts; Part 1 will involve assessment of the physical infrastructure while Part 2 will deal with the assessment of the curriculum and its management.

Once the applicant is deemed to meet set requirements, a recommendation will be made by the inspection team to the relevant Committee of the Board of the Institute for review, which, if satisfied, will make appropriate recommendations to the Board of the Institute for approval. Once the application has been approved, a letter as an interim authority or permission will be written to the institution to start working on its implementation process with a provision in the letter indicating that consent is for a period of four years. A review of the institution is made after every four-years or completion of the academic cycle.

Where the inspectors find the institution not to have met set standards, appropriate recommendations will be made by the Institute in accordance with their findings. The institution concerned will be informed accordingly.

Step Three: Issuance of Certificate: Upon satisfying regulatory requirements, applicants for accreditation will be issued with certificates. Accredited institutions shall be required to display their certificate/license as evidence of their accreditation and purpose. An institution that is a constituent college of a university continues to be as such until at such a time when formally accredited in its own right. Private higher education institutions, including foreign universities, have to comply with the established procedures.

From time to time, the Institute will publish the list of accredited institutions that show the following information: name of the institution, location, type of qualification, licence and registration number to ensure creditability of these institutions.

6.0 INSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

The Institute, as a regulatory body, has legal mandate to manage and enforce the procurement and supply chain professional standards. In this regard, The Board and two of its professional committees which are the Education and Qualifications Committee according to section 32 and the Professional Practice Committee according to section 34 of the Act, will oversee the accreditation process, while management under the Chief Executive Officer of the Institute will support the Board through provision of technical services in relation to the mandate of the Institute.

Procurement and Supply Chain management as a discipline consists of many stakeholders such as: the Council, educational institutions, professional institutions, government departments, employers and international professional bodies which, according to the Act, have to ensure that the objectives for setting the standards are met.

The roles of selected stakeholders are elaborated in Part II (4.0) of this document.

7.0 MONITORING AND EVALUATION

All programmes of this nature need to be properly monitored in order to establish if they are meeting the goals and objectives for which they were set up. For effective accreditation as an audit procedural process, it is important that all stakeholders be aware of the Act. The Institute needs to establish and maintain good relationships with its stakeholders to effectively monitor the performance of training institutions and the professional qualifications they award. The regulatory body should be seen to be fair by being evidence based in its reporting. This means that the Institute should be provided with adequate resources for it to evenly reach out to all institutions for the credibility of the findings and the punitive measures associated with non-conformity to the standards.

This monitoring and evaluation shall be done at such intervals as shall be determined appropriate by the Chief Executive Officer of the Institute.

8.0 APPLICATION OF THE STANDARDS

These standards shall apply to all institutions that want to provide training in Procurement and Supply Chain Management in Malawi and are in line with the Act. This Act must be used as a living document to guide all operations and decisions to this effect. Part III of the Act states that no institution or individual will be allowed to render services without being accredited.

The Institute, according Part II of the Act, shall set and conduct professional examinations leading to award of certificates; annually publish in the Gazette a list of registered Procurement and Supply Management members by 30th April each year. In the same vein, the Education and Qualification Committee is to constantly satisfy itself and the Board on the adequacy of the curriculum and the learning conditions to ensure that graduates have sufficient knowledge, skills, ethical standards for the practice of the procurement and supply chain management profession.

9.0 CONCLUSION

The initiative of the Institute to develop standards for procurement and supply management training institutions and providers is commendable. However, it is important that all stakeholders embrace the standards through an effective advocacy programme to ensure that all stakeholders, including institutions and individuals in procurement and supply chain management, abide by the standards stipulated herein.

APPENDIX I: ACCREDITATION STANDARDS FOR TRAINING INSTITUTIONS AND PROVIDERS

Below are proposed minimum standards for newly established and continuing training institutions:

An institution of Higher learning shall work to meet the standards which have been established by the Council.

PART I

1.0 General guidelines on facilities

The training Institutions must ensure that the various physical facilities comply with the applicable construction laws as well as health laws of the Republic of Malawi.

1.1 Infrastructure and equipment

An institution will be required to demonstrate that it has adequate structures and equipment to support the mission statement, purpose and scope of programmes and services being offered.

1.2 Adequacy and suitability of classrooms

The parameters that shall be looked into are classroom size, ventilation and light; availability of toilets/urinals in observance of the recommended student-facility ratios of 1:10; computer laboratories - one per institution, with a computer -students' ratio of 1:20; classrooms/lecture rooms per training programme spacious enough to allow the minimum one square metre space per student; and Libraries - one per institution, and one that is capable of affording every student one square metre sitting space.

TABLE 1.1: TO SHOW SPACE REQUIREMENT OF PHYSICAL FACILITIES

Infrastructure	Ideal	Good	Acceptable	Unacceptable
Class not more than 50	1.2sqm per student	1sqm per student	0.8sqm per student	Less than 0.8sqm per student
Teaching space	20sqm	15sqm	10sqm	Less than 10sqm
Computer Lab. 1 per institution	2.0sqm per student		2.0sqm per student	Less than 1sqm
Toilets	One for 10 students Urinal one for 25 male students		One per 20 students urinal One per 30 students

TABLE 1.2: MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS OF FUNCTIONING FACILITIES

Facility	Minimum space requirement	Minimum No. Required
Conference Hall- more than 50 persons	0.8 square meter per person	1
Staff room	30square meters	1
General office structure	10 square meters	In accordance with institutional structure
Student recreational centre	50 square meters 1
Board room	60 square meters	In accordance with the institutional structure
Principal's office	30 square meters	1 per institution
Secretary's office	13 square meters 1

PART 2

1.0 Teaching and Learning Materials:

An institution must have relevant reference materials such as recommended books and course outlined materials; teaching aids and other support facilities including internet sources of learning materials. The library must be equipped with relevant up to date textbooks, reference materials and e-resources. The library should meet the book-student ratio of 1: 20.

TABLE 1.3: MINIMUM LIBRARY RESOURCES REQUIREMENT

Item	Ideal	Good	Acceptable	Unacceptable
Library relevant books student ratio	1:10	1:20	1:30	Above 1:30
Library computer student ratio	1:5	1:10	1:25	Above 1:25
Library Internet Connectivity (hours)	Twenty	Fourteen	Twelve	Less than twelve hours
Number of Links to e-library resources	Ten	Five	Three	Less than three
Library Resource	one per institution and one square metre per student			Less than 0.8 square metres

1.1 Training programme and minimum qualification of teaching staff

Every training institution must have two full time fully qualified staff per training programme.

Table 1.4 below outlines minimum qualifications required of the teaching staff. The recommended teacher-student ratio is 1: 50.

TABLE 1.4: LEVEL OF TRAINING PROGRAMME AND MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS OF TEACHING STAFF

Level of Programme	Qualification of Teachers/ Lectures
Certificate	Degree
Diploma	Degree
Degree	Master degree
Master's Degree	PhD; Master degree
PhD	PhD;
FMIPS Fellow Professional Membership Qualifications	FMIPS

On level of qualification for teaching staff, it will be the responsibility of the Institute as a regulatory body, to ensure that teaching is done by qualified personnel.

1.2 Students admission policy and selection criteria

Admission standards should clearly specify selection procedures that are in conformity with the stipulated guidelines set by the Ministry of Education, the Council and the Office Director of Public Procurement and relevant Government of Malawi organs. Table 1.5 below shows training levels, entry requirements and duration for each training programme.

TABLE 1.5: MINIMUM ENTRY REQUIREMENT AND PROGRAMME DURATION

Programme	Entry Requirement	Duration
Certificate in Procurement and Supply: Level 2	MSCE including credit pass in English and Mathematics. No professional entry requirement	1 year. Topics covered: Principles ;Functions Processes; Administration Stakeholders in P&S
Advanced Certificate in Procurement and Supply: Level 3	CIPS/MIPS Certificate	2 years. Topics Covered: Environment; operations; Workflow; inventory and logistics; relationships
Diploma in Procurement and Supply: Level 4	CIPS/MIPS Advanced Certificate	3 years. Topics Covered: Context; business needs; sourcing; negotiation & contracting; managing contracts & relationships.
Advanced Diploma in Procurement and Supply: Level 5	CIPS/MIPS Diploma	4 years. Topics covered: Management; managing risks; improving competitiveness of supply chain operations; category management; sustainability.
Professional Diploma in Procurement & supply Level 6	CIPS Advance Diploma	Leadership, cooperate & business strategy; strategic supply chain management; programme and Project management; Legal issues in procurement & supply
Bachelor's degree	(i) MSCE at least six credits including English and Mathematics or (ii) MSCE plus Bridging course (4 years) or (iii) Advanced Certificate Level CIPS/THE INSTITUTE (3years) or (iv) University Diploma in related field	4 years. Topics covered: All CIPS/MIPS evel courses; Leadership; project management; Cooperate business strategy; strategic supply chain management; Legal issues in Procurement and Supply 3years Topics Covered (as above).

	Advanced Diploma CIPS /THE INSTITUTE Advanced Diploma	2 years. Topics covered inclusive of the above courses
Masters; PhD	Advanced diploma CIPS/MIPS	2 years (Masters) and 4 years (PhD). Topics covered will be according to approved curriculum.
THE INSTITUTE Fellow Professional Membership Qualification	Professional Membership of MIPS conferred on someone with Degree and /or Advanced CIPS/ MIPS Diploma and also having occupied senior position in an organisation for at least three years; sat and passed MIPS professional examinations	Completed Advanced diploma plus 10 years as procurement officer and 3 years of practical/ professional experience

- (a) Certificate level: Entry requirement is MSCE certificate including credit passes in English and Mathematics, and the duration is one year.
- (b) Advanced Certificate: The entry requirement is CIPS Certificate, and the duration is two years.
- (c) Diploma: the entry requirement is CIPS/MIPS Advanced Certificate or its equivalent, and the duration is three years.
- (d) Advanced Diploma: The entry requirement is CIPS/MIPS Diploma or its equivalent, and the duration is four years.
- (e) Degree Level: There are four options available for one to enter into a degree training programme, namely:
 - (i) Direct entry from school with an MSCE with at least six credits including English and Mathematics. Duration four years.
 - (ii) An MSCE but slightly short of the above. Undertake a Bridging Course followed by examinations and if successful, can be admitted into the programme. The course content and duration of bridging course to be determined by the training institution. Duration four years.
 - (iii) Advanced School Certificate Pass or A Level candidates. Duration three years.
 - (iv) University Diploma in a related field; CIPS/MIPS Advanced Diploma or its equivalent, and the duration is two years.
 - (v) Masters/PhD: Advanced CIPS/MIPS Diploma; Bachelor's degree, Master's degree. Duration two years for Master's degree and 4 years for PhD.
 - (vi) FMIPS Fellow Professional Membership (CIPS)/Fellow Professional Membership of the Institute: conferred on someone as procurement person with Degree and /or Advanced CIPS/MIPS Diploma for ten years and also having occupied senior position in an organisation for at least three years or sat and passed the Institute professional examinations.

2.0 Healthy, Safe and Secure Environment:

The institution should have conducive learning environment; availability of first aid kit facility / facilities, clean running water, safe and insured buildings, and fire extinguishers. It is important that every institution provides for persons with special needs.

TABLE 1.6: CONSTRUCTION SPECIFICATIONS

Facility	Minimum space requirement
Pavements	Foot path gradient not more than 1:20 slope. For a too long gradient introduce rest areas between 1:20 and 1:15
Humps; Entrance doors and corridors	Minimum width of footpath 1.8 metres plus hand rails on either side of the hump. For entrance doors and corridors, provide level area for easy turning of wheel chair. Minimum door space 0.8m. The doors to open outside
Elevators	Should be wide enough for the wheel chair
Toilets	Must be fitted to provide for the movement of a wheel chair. Solid waste management must be according to City regulations and standards.

3.0 ACADEMIC PROGRAMME

In assessing the academic programmes, the Accrediting Authority, which is the Institute, shall pay attention to the following—

- (a) programme title, aims and objectives of the course;
- (b) course code/ syllabi;
- (c) weighting of the course (number of credit units);
- (d) year and semester of the course;
- (e) assessment;
- (f) awards; and
- (g) awarding body.

3.1 Details of the course programme:

- (a) name(s) of the teaching staff, qualifications and position of full time lecturers;
- (b) number of lecturers by department and position of part – time lecturers;
- (c) context of the course within the programme;
- (d) course objectives, outline and content;
- (e) assessment methods/criteria;
- (f) reference materials; and
- (g) mode of delivery.

3.2 Duration of Programme and Contact Hours

The duration of programme and number of contact hours between staff and students in higher education institutions should be in accordance with regulations issued by the Council—

- (a) programme/course duration should be clearly specified in terms of semesters per academic year/calendar months. The course outlines with assessment procedures should be made known to all students;
- (b) institutions operating on semester system should ensure that each semester lasts a minimum of eighteen weeks of teaching followed by a period of examinations; and
- (c) each course should be allocated a minimum of three hours per week of learning.

3.3 Examinations, Regulations and Standardisation of Awards

Institutions of higher learning should ensure that—

- (a) candidates have a minimum attendance of 75% of lectures to be eligible to sit for examinations;
- (b) ensure that all their candidates are fully notified in writing on examination regulations and procedures preferably at the beginning of the academic year;
- (c) Institutions should ensure consistency and transparency in the formats and conduct of examinations and mode of marking scheme;
- (d) institutions to ensure validity and reliability of examination results; mechanisms for examination quality assurance should include moderation, proper conduct and marking by internal and external examiners especially the final year;
- (d) students should have a right of appeal when dissatisfied with the conduct of examinations and assessment. The appeal mechanism should be known to students and other stakeholders well before examinations take place;
- (e) training programmes should be appropriately weighted. Assessment should be as a result of assigned grades as follows—
 - (i) A (80% +); B+ (70-79%); B- (60-69%); C (50-59%); and D (0-49%) normally used in secondary schools although the final grading of MANEB at MSCE Ordinary Level grades range from 1 to 9 as follows;
 - (ii) 1-2 Distinction; 3-6 Credit; and 7-8 Pass; and 9 Fail;
 - (iii) the following classification of awards is used in case of Cambridge School Certificate;
 - (iv) A = First Class; B+ = Second Class Upper Division; B = Second Class Lower Division; C = Pass; D = Fail;
 - (viii) assessment records of students should follow the Grade Point Average (GPA) score system; and
 - (ix) when presenting the results, every institution is to comply with percentage range to letter grade and points that correspond to it.

3.4 Need for National Qualifications Framework (NQF)

National Qualifications framework is a way of converting qualifications obtained in one institution within a country and that obtained in another institution (which is used as a benchmark). For example if one qualifies in Economics at Lilongwe University of Agriculture and Natural Resources, how would you compare him or her with one who graduates at Exploits University? The framework is necessary when comparing foreign obtained qualifications to those obtained in Malawi. The Table below gives an example of a qualification framework. It compares CIPS qualifications in United Kingdom to those of South Africa Quality Assurance, National Qualification Framework (SAQA, NQF), Australia Qualification Framework (AQF), Asia Pacific, United Arab Emirates and Africa -which includes Malawi. In each of these countries, the yard stick is CIPS which consists of 5 levels of awards and each level has 5 compulsory units of study and each unit is assessed through examinations. However, what may differ between CIPS in countries could be the delivery method of these units of study which may include lecturing, tutorial, practical and workshops of different modes and perhaps where higher education (degree) or professional certificate level comes in.

TABLE 1:7 EXAMPLE OF A NATIONAL QUALIFICATION FRAMEWORK

4.0 ROLE OF SELECTED STAKEHOLDERS IN ACCREDITATION PROCESS

The system of accreditation will involve a number of players as follows—

- (a) employers;
- (b) the Institute as a regulatory body; and
- (c) The National Council for Higher Education.

These players shall be guided by the Act and shall ensure that—

- (a) institutions involved in procurement and supply training should set their standards in compliance with the stipulated standards;
- (b) institutions should keep record of basic procurement standards to meet society and student needs; and
- (c) outcomes and improvements are research based and closely linked to mission and purpose of the institution and the education objectives.

4.1 Role of employers

Employers are important stakeholders and should be involved in the following roles—

- (a) participate in tracer studies;
- (b) offer opportunity for internship;
- (c) ensure employee performance evaluation, development of the job descriptions and specifications;
- (d) assist in reviewing procurement curricula; and
- (e) participate in updating procurement occupational standards. In implementing these standards, all stakeholders will play their rightful roles to ensure that the objective of establishing standards is fulfilled.

4.2 Role of National Council for Higher Education

The Council shall liaise with the Institute in the accreditation of Procurement and Supply training institutions, particularly on the academic programmes.

4.3 Role of the Institute as a regulatory body

In accordance with current legislative framework governing procurement, financial management and regulation of procurement and Supply professionals in Malawi, the Institute shall undertake the following—

- (a) work with all key stakeholders to implement the stipulated standards;
- (b) carry out market surveys to assess the standards required and capacity of training programmes needed in procurement;
- (c) review procurement education and training standards in consultation with other competent authorities;
- (d) coordinate consultative meetings in procurement education and training with key stakeholders;
- (e) participate in inspection, investigation, audit and quality assurance of training institutions;
- (f) recommend to relevant authorities appropriate punitive action to be taken against a person or organisation for breaching any of the stipulated standards; and
- (g) ensure that procurement training standards are approved by relevant authorities and disseminated to all stakeholders accordingly.

Within the Institute, this role will squarely fall on the Education and Qualifications Committee as per Part II Section 4 (b) and (c) and Part V Sections 33(a) and (b) of the Act.
